Benefits for Tasmania

Tasmanian Leaders Program positively influences Tasmania's future. The graduates of our program give back to the community in a variety of ways, including through:

→ Program structure

The Tasmanian Leaders Program is delivered on a part-time basis through monthly gatherings from February to November.

This structure allows participants to maintain their important professional and personal responsibilities. It also allows for reading, reflection and active networking over a sustained period, strengthening the relationships between participants and helping to ensure that learnings 'stick'.

The Program has four main streams of development activity:

- 1 Three multi-day residential retreats.
- 2 Seven two to three-day Linking Sessions.
- 3 Ongoing contact across the year.
- 4 An impactful Learning Set Project.

Residentials

The Residentials provide an opportunity for in-depth personal and professional development. The same core facilitators design and lead all Residentials providing continuity throughout the year.

During the Residentials, and also at the Linking Sessions, participants develop and practice a range of leadership competencies to allow:

- Greater understanding of self and the impact of one's behaviour on others.
- Improved knowledge of group dynamics to increase capacity to motivate, lead and mentor.

- Better strategic thinking so decision making is informed, considered, inclusive and long-term.
- Growth in confidence and communication skills to better negotiate, influence and lead change.
- Improved professional and personal relationship skills.
- Enhanced ability to work with and value diversity.
- Greater clarity around personal strengths and weaknesses.
- Development of a life plan and career path.

Linking Sessions

Each Linking Session is held over two or three days. These are typically held on Fridays and Saturdays.

One day of each Linking Session is devoted to the exploration of an issue of significance for Tasmania's future. These sessions involve a variety of experts, critical thinkers and business and community leaders who help participants explore different perspectives on the topic to challenge existing beliefs and assumptions. These sessions help participants think in more complex, systemic, strategic, and interdependent ways building greater capacity to work with ambiguity, complexity and uncertainty.

The other day is devoted to exploring different facets of leadership development focusing on personal or professional development.

Learning Set Projects

A key feature of the Tasmanian Leaders Program is the identification and successful completion of a Learning Set Project.

These projects are designed to reinforce and develop program learning, to make a positive difference in the Tasmanian community, as well as to deliver a demonstrable return on investment to the State.

Learning Set Projects are delivered by Tasmanian Leaders Program participants working in small groups called Learning Sets. Learning Sets adopt formal project management processes and often partner with existing not-for-profit organisations to ensure they are addressing real needs.

Participants are encouraged to complete their projects during the ten months of the Program. However, some will require completion following graduation. The projects encourage learning and as such the outcomes of them are reported at an event held in May the year following graduation.

The following guidelines apply in developing Projects. They should:

- Be small enough to be achievable.
- Be large enough to matter.
- Aspire to make a positive contribution.

→ Commitment and 2024 dates

The Tasmanian Leaders Program is an esteemed and intensive undertaking aimed at high potential-leaders with a strong commitment to advancing their own leadership potential.

As part of that commitment, successful applicants are expected to attend and actively participate in all Program sessions. When accepting a position on the Program, participants agree to attend the opening, mid-year and closing Residentials and the seven Linking Sessions. Failure to meet this requirement can jeopardise your graduation and your membership to the Tasmanian Leaders Network.

The dates of the 2024 program are provided here so you and your employer can discuss the attendance requirements before you submit an application.

In addition you are invited to view the participant charter that you will be asked to sign at the time of application:

www.tasmanianleaders.org.au/participant-charter.

As a state-wide program with participants drawn from all over Tasmania, events are held at a variety of venues and locations across the State. Locations will be chosen based on their relevance to the topic being considered. A number of specific site visits or tours will be included in the schedule of events to provide a diversity of learning experiences and a context for the discussions to be held.

→ Program fees

While participants and their organisations contribute to the cost of producing the Tasmanian Leaders Program, these contributions in no way cover the full cost of delivering the program.

Tasmanian Leaders holds down Tasmanian Leaders Program fees for participants and their organisations thanks to the generous support of our committed sponsors and supporters, including generous foundation support from the Tasmanian Government through the Department of State Growth.

Each place on the course costs $8,700 (incl. GST) in total in 2024. This amount is shared by individuals and their employers.

The fees are broken into two components because Tasmanian Leaders seeks a tangible commitment from participants as well as their employers to undertake the program.

The program fees cover the cost of program materials, networking events, field trips, meals and accommodation at each of the three Residentials, as well as lunches and morning and afternoon teas at each of the seven Linking Sessions.

Not included in the program fees are the participant's transport to or from the Residentials or the Linking Sessions (participants often carpool), nor accommodation for the Linking Sessions (if required).

Participant contribution

The amount payable by participants on the program is $1,300 (incl. GST). $600 of this amount is payable at the time of acceptance of a place on the Program (Nov-Dec 2023) and the remainder before the first Residential (Jan-Feb 2024).

Employer/sponsor contribution

The amount payable by a participant's employer (or other sponsor) is $7,400 (incl. GST). This amount is payable before 30 January 2024. In most circumstances, if you are self-employed, or not currently employed, you will be required to pay both the employer/sponsor fee and the participant contribution.

To see our terms and conditions regarding refunds please visit www.tasmanianleaders.org.au/terms.

Scholarships

Tasmanian Leaders is committed to the selection of participants with diverse backgrounds and it is our policy that there should be no economic or other barriers for individuals to participate. We understand that there may be some applicants for whom the above financial contributions could create a difficulty and as such we work with a number of key partners to provide select scholarships.

Scholarships help individuals and organisations cover all, or a portion of the Program fee to build capacity in a particular community or industry, based on the priorities of the scholarship partners.

For further information on current scholarships visit the Tasmania Leaders website and look in the Tasmanian Leaders Program section: www.tasmanianleaders.org.au/programs/tas-leaders-program/tlp-scholarships

In exceptional circumstances the Board of Tasmanian Leaders may provide a discount to successful candidates who are ineligible for any of our scholarships and cannot afford the Program fees.

Please contact our office to discuss, in confidence, your circumstances should you have a need to apply for this discount.

→ Frequently asked questions

Applying

When should I expect an interview?

Shortlisted applicants should prepare for a virtual interview between 30 October to 3 November.

What kind of people are you seeking to complete the Program?

Each Program brings together a maximum of 24 aspiring Tasmanian leaders. Participants are selected to ensure diversity within the group and their ability to contribute a variety of skills and experiences.

The participant group comes from across the state and is typically made up of approximately 45-50% from the private sector, approximately 30-35% from the public sector, and approximately 20-25% from the not-for-profit sector. Their average age is forty. This diversity ensures lively discussion but also means that, in addition to learning from the program content, the participants learn a significant amount from their interactions with one another.

A list of current participants can be found on our website. Alternatively if you wish to connect with a graduate prior to submitting an application, please use our graduate search where you can search via interests or industry at:

www.tasmanianleaders.org.au/the-network/graduate-search.

I am self-employed/ currently unemployed – can I participate in TLP?

Yes, a self-employed or unemployed person can participate and they are encouraged to apply.

There are two people from my organisation who would like to participate. Can we both apply?

Two or more applications may be submitted by staff from one organisation. Although it is unlikely that both would be successful in any given round, each will be assessed on a case-by-case basis and measured on the merits of the application and the diversity of the overall participant group.

I have applied previously, can I reapply?

Many qualified candidates may not be chosen because of restrictions on the size of the group and the need for diversity in group composition. Individuals not selected are encouraged to reapply in subsequent years.

Program content and design

What is Action Learning?

Action learning is an educational process whereby participants study their own actions and experiences in order to improve performance. It allows participants to gain knowledge through actions and repetition, rather than through traditional instruction. TLP action learning is done in conjunction with others, in small groups called Learning Sets. It is considered to be particularly suitable for adults, as it enables each person to reflect on and review the action they have taken and the learning points arising. This should then guide future action and improve performance.

What is a Learning Set?

At the opening session participants will form Learning Sets. These are a smaller group of participants who work together for the duration of the program. This enables participants to develop close bonds with a smaller number of the group to maximise the sharing of experiences while providing feedback and invaluable support to one another. A large proportion of discussions and activities will occur within these Learning Sets. In addition to learning from each other, these groups are expected to deliver a program day focussed on an issue affecting Tasmania's future and a Project.

→ Frequently asked questions

Does the program use any diagnostics?

Program participants will be exposed to a range of diagnostic tools, depending on the development needs and interests of the group, to help them understand themselves, their communication preferences, and how they perceive the world and make decisions. The Myers-Brigg Type Indicator (MBTI) will be used with each group throughout the program.

My employer is unwilling to fund the employer contribution. Can I still apply to participate in the Program?

Yes, you can still apply. In your interview you will be asked to provide details of how you intend to pay this portion of the participation fee. In any given year there are participants who choose to cover the cost of both the employer fee and the participant fee and negotiate with the employer for time off work to participate.

For people who are self-employed, who pays the employer contribution?

The business is assumed to be the employer and depending on the size and turnover of the company payment plans can be negotiated.

Partners
